His Chance

What do you men know of women's work? fiercely queried the lady orator. Is there a man here, she continued, folding her arms, that has day after day got up in the morning and gone quietly downstairs, made the fire, cooked his own breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, cleaned the pots and kettles, and swept the kitchen? If there is such a man in this audience, let him rise up; I should like to see him. In the rear of the hall a mild-looking man in spectacles in obedience to the summons, timidly arose. He was the husband of the eloquent speaker. It was the first time he had ever had a chance to assert himself.

When going away from home, or at any change of habitat, he is a wise man who numbers among his belongings a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. Change of food and water in some strange place where there are no doctors may bring on an attack of dysentery. He then has a standard remedy at hand with which to cope with the disorder, and forearmed he can successfully fight the ailment and subdue it.

Worthy of Sherlock Holmes

Tommy's mother had taken him to church to hear the evening sermon, and they occupied seats in the gallery. Tommy tried not to allow his attention to wander from the preacher, but it did. He seemed to be particularly interested in a family who sat in front of him; and when the sermon was about half over he whispered to his mother—Mamma, I never saw those people before, but I know their names. Hush dear! But I do, persisted Tommy. Their name's Hill. How do you know? Every time the preacher says his text, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills," those two big girls look at each other and smile. Subsequent inquiry proved that Tommy was quite correct.

Father Bernard Vaughan gave some advice to young men in a humorous address.

Popularity, popularity among the ladies, is a great help to any young man, said he, and there is nothing like generosity to make a young man popular.

I heard a lady praising a young man the other evening.

He is so generous, she said. He takes mother and me out to dinner nearly every week. We dote on him.

Then she smiled and added: In fact, we table d'hôte on him.

For arguing that our world is only one of many, Giordano Bruno was burned to death in Rome in 1600.

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force for the Day

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true, even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and egg gave me great distress.

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when injudiciously varying my diet.

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

"Grape-Nuts holds first rank at our table."

HOW POPLAR GROWS

Rate of Growth Studied in Canada and United States

The aspen poplar, frequently spoken of as the white poplar, is one of the most common trees all over Canada (at any rate in that portion of the Dominion east of the Rocky Mountains). In many parts of the Dominion it forms quite extensive forests (especially in districts that have been burned over). This fact gives it a place of some importance in the forestry of the Dominion, although it is one of the inferior woods.

Some years ago (in 1905) the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior made a careful survey of the Turtle Mountain forest reserve in Southern Manitoba, on which this poplar is by all odds the most plentiful tree. As a result of investigation on the basis of data collected during this survey, it was estimated that, if the poplar were allowed to grow to the age of forty years, there would be an average growth, for the whole of that time, of one cord per year on a fully stocked acre. At the end of that time there would be standing on each acre about 850 trees, of an average height of 45 feet and an average diameter, at 4½ feet above the ground, of 6 inches; these would yield some 40 cords of wood.

Recently the United States Forest Service published their Bulletin No. 93, entitled "The Aspens," and it is interesting to note that their results come close to the figures made out by the Canadian survey. Volume tables given at the conclusion of this bulletin show that trees of the height and diameter given above will each yield between one twentieth and one twenty-fifth of a cord of wood apiece. Thus the 850 acres would give somewhere between thirty-four and forty-two cords of wood. The average of the two amounts gives thirty-eight cords, a figure nearly the same as that obtained by the Canadians.

As there are 55,000 acres in the Turtle Mountain reserve that are capable of growing timber, it is a reasonable inference that the reserve may be counted on to produce 55,000 cords, or thereabouts, of wood per year. At the low rate of $1 per cord on the stump, this would mean an annual revenue to the state of $55,000. Or, to take another point of view it would give to each inhabitant of the electoral district of Souris almost two cords of wood per year.

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

CHAPTER XXVI
Sammy's Theft

Weather and supper mattered nothing.

Harry could not understand why Lady Anne had not honored him by feeling anxious. But that she had done so was such a joy that he decided to get round himself to the lodge to get her know of his safe return.

As Mrs. Anning's confidence must be respected, he had to think of an excuse for his late visit. The one thing that came to his mind sent the blood rushing into his sunburnt cheeks.

Late is short, he reflected. She must know I love her. I have already told her I am a Clavel; so that need not stand in my way. I will go over tomorrow afternoon and formally ask Lady Anne to marry me. And I will write tonight to say I am coming.

He sat down before the mahogany writing table in the dining-room and felt in his pockets for the stylographic pen he always carried. As he did so, his fingers touched the small bottle, the contents of which he had had analyzed. It was rattling among some pennies he had been given in change, and Harry decided that he would show it to Lady Anne the next day, in order to prove to her that she had some reason in her doubts as to his safety in London. He therefore took it out and placed it in a draw of the writing table, together with the pence, which were weighing down his pocket.

Dear Lady Anne, he wrote. I am leaving this letter immediately after my return from London to ask whether I may call and see you between three and four o'clock tomorrow afternoon. There is something I very much wish to say to you as soon as possible. Very likely you can guess what it is. In any case, please give me a hearing. If you do not write to forbid me the house, I will come to Loders Abbey tomorrow.

Always your faithful servant,
Harry Payne Clavelworth.

Mrs. Anning ran after him with an umbrella. Harry had not noticed that it was raining.

Of course, I shall not let Lady Anne know what you told me, he assured her. But as I particularly want to call and see her to-morrow, I thought if I left a letter about my visit myself it would save you the trouble of going to the lodge to say I had returned.

Mrs. Anning had to appear satisfied but she shook her head as she looked after her handsome lodger from the porch of the farm.

I don't like the looks of it! she murmured. Young gentlemen don't go rushing out in the rain like that.

Eight Years of Bad Eczema on Hands

Miss Mary A. Bentley
Montreal

Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, writes, in a recent letter: "Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. 'Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications the burning sensations were disappearing. I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Cuticura Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone. It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me.'"

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. booklet, send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 66 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

for nothing. He's only wasting his time, for certain; for Lady Anne treats men like as if they were dirt underneath her feet. And Miss Lillias is sweet upon him, poor dear, as everyone can see with half an eye.

Just within the green wooden gate at Loders Abbey, which Harry found unfastened as on his former visits, he heard a sound of whispered talk, of laughing and kissing.

Then a metallic male voice, speaking in lowered tones, reached his ears out of the gloom of the avenue.

Well, good-bye, little girl! I will come and see you again before the week is out. Keep your eyes open, and if you have anything important to tell me, you will be well-paid for it.

The sound of a parting kiss followed, and Harry walking forward in the direction of the Abbey, came upon two figures advancing arm in arm in an affectionate half embrace.

In spite of the darkness of the night and the thick shade cast by the branches overhead, Harry recognized them both immediately.

The woman was Lisette Dupont, the new maid at the Abbey, and the man was the inquisitive stranger with a diamond nose of interrogation in his tie whom Harry had met at Lyllyington, and who had shot at the idiot Sammy on the previous Thursday.

At the unexpected sight of Harry, Lisette uttered a little scream and fled back in the direction of the lodge. Harry had no intention of taking notice of the man, but the latter had recognized him, and after a moment's hesitation he addressed him.

Good evening! he said. Paying a late call, eh?

After what he had overheard, Harry felt that his anger and contempt would not let him reply, and he moved quickly on without speaking.

The man walked a step or two after him and burst into a disagreeable laugh.

Shirky, eh? he suggested impudently. I am not poaching on your preserves, my dear sir. You are after the mistress, and I am after the maid—at present.

With another laugh he withdrew, and Harry heard him swing the gate too after him, and strike off into the dark road, whistling an air.

Lady Anne was angry with me for saying so, Harry reflected; but I would be ready to stake a good deal that that man is a detective. He is paying that silly French girl to play the spy for him. Ought I to warn Lady Anne when I see her, I wonder? But what can a detective have to find out in Loders Abbey.

An excited burst of talk in shrill feminine voices came to him as he was about to pull the bell at the lodge. Just inside the timber doors Miss Susan Jessop was giving a piece of her mind to Mlle. Lisette Dupont.

A fine state of things, I must say, for you to be slippin' out o' nights in this way! Easy to see you're vorrin an' not a Do'set, self-respectin' maid. Where ha' you been, miss?

Is it your affair, you peasant wize face red cried Mlle. Dupont. You are too ugly for zat a man admire you and you are zen jealous of me. I have wished only to have a little air—

Air in the pouren' rain exclaimed Miss Jessop disdainfully. Your days here are numbered, you fauten' French hussy! You are not the style for Loders Abbey!

Mlle. Dupont was heard to snap her fingers.

Zat for Loders Abbey! she remarked. So long as your ole grandpere wish me to stay, so long I shall remain. It is not you but him zat give orders here.

Lisette departed with this parting shot, and Susan, at length condescending to listen to the ringing of the bell, opened the gates to Harry.

As might be expected from her recent encounter, her handsome, bright-colored face looked flushed and angry, but she was civil enough to Harry, and promised to deliver his note at once, although she eyed the envelope as though she were longing to know its contents.

I hope your nephew is none the worse for his accident? Harry said.

The young woman's face clouded.

I'm fearing he mld have taken a chill, she said. The poor child's been feverish at night, and wanderin' in his head. When I went in just now to see if he was asleep, he was talking to himself about the beautiful vealry that comes to see him.

What vealry? I says. My vealry, he answers, that comes to see me when I go to bed if I am good. I told her, he says, about my being a drowned and the nice gentleman a-savin me. But I told no one else, Aunt Susan. Now, what I want to know, sir, is whether someone has really got into the lodge, while I have been a-walken' out, as I sometimes do with my young man. If I thought 'twas that French girl—

I expect he was only dreaming, Harry said consolingly.

But I don't want the story to get about, Susan protested. Lady Anne wouldn't care. But when I think of Granfer—

You seem very much in awe of that old gentleman, Harry remarked.

So would you be, sir, if you knew en, Susan retorted, her native perverseness coming back to her. He led Granmer an awful life in the old days.

But she hardly sees en now, and when she does, he only lies there, quivering and glenning at her with not so much as a good mornen. The child's all he cares for, but he frightens the poor lamb.

The Real Thing in Small Beginnings

When Henry Miller is rehearsing a new play he works hard and long remaining sometimes on the stage for twenty-four hours at a stretch. Naturally, such a strain makes him nervous, and the combination of nervousness and artistic temperament occasionally produces an outburst, a flare-up, a blow-off. During the rehearsals for his last play, several things had gone wrong and Miller had exhibited his impatience in gesture and words.

He went on with the work and was in the midst of a scene in which he had to pick up a teapot. As he did so, the handle came off, the pot fell to the table, and the tea—real tea—trickled down on the actor's legs. The stage manager immediately was seized by a trembling fit, and every member of the company began to wish for a cyclone cellar. They knew the star was about to cut loose.

But this last ill of fortune had been too much for him. Holding the handle in his hand and regarding the property man with sorrow, he said gently:

Can't you fix this teapot? I've got to scrub the floors.

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows.

You treat that gentleman very respectfully.

Yes, he's one of our early settlers. An early settler? Why, man, he's not more than forty years old.

No, but he pays his bills on the first of every month.

A gentleman once said: It is delightful to travel in America, but I think that American porters handle the luggage a little too roughly.

Once, at a certain station, I was amazed and pleased to hear a uniformed official shout to a burly porter:

Hi, what are you knockin' them trunks about like that for?

The porter had been lifting great trunks above his head and hurling them down onto the floor furiously; but now he stood stock-still in astonishment.

What's that, boss, he said.

What do you mean by knockin' trunks about like that? repeated the official. Look at the floor. Look at the dents you're makin' in the concrete. Don't you know you'll lose your job if you damage the company's property?

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonable safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera, infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in the summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Commercialism of the South

Stuart C. Leake, the railroad man, had to wait for a train in Columbus, Georgia, one day and he put in the time by hiring a carriage for a drive through the town and its neighborhood. Naturally, he was anxious to learn all he could about the place, and, to do this, he addressed many questions to the old colored man who was driving him.

Uncle, he said finally, what are the principal lines of business here, the chief products of the town?

I cal'lates, boss, said the old man, dat de principal products in dese parts is pedigree an' de preliminary spring practicing ob de big-leag ball teams.

BRITISH NATIONAL INSURANCE ACT PROVES TO BE A SUCCESS

The Act Compelling People to Insure Against Sickness and Disablement Now in Force in Britain, and Gives Promise of Proving to be of Great Benefit

London.—So far as can be judged during the three days the new national insurance act compelling people to insure against sickness and disablement has been in force and before any payments, except in the case of casual laborers, have fallen due, the measure is working according to the government officials more smoothly than was expected.

The doctors represented by the British medical association are still in revolt against the act and announce their intention of refusing to attend patients under its provisions.

An organization including a number of society people has also been formed with the object of resisting payments for domestic servants.

This, however, is chiefly a political move, so that the only real opposition the government has to face is that of the doctors.

The government has offered the doctors the sum of four shillings and sixpence annually for each person insured but the doctors demand eight shillings and sixpence.

The workmen and working women have taken up the great reform with alacrity and the government estimates that of the 30,000,000 persons insured before the act came into force upwards of 10,000,000 have already registered with approved societies, which have undertaken to administer the act and another 500,000 have taken out cards at the post offices.

Before the end of the week, when the first payments fall due for those drawing weekly salaries the government believes that practically all those entitled to do so will have become insured.

The only section of the community likely to suffer is that composed of casual workers and old people, both men and women, as some of the big employers have decided to do away with this form of labor.

Besides the casual laborers are not likely to derive any benefits from the measure.

While they are working and the employers are paying part of the premium, the casuals will not suffer much, but they will be unable to pay their full dues during the weeks when they are out of work and will thus lose the benefits of previous payments.

As the first employer of a casual laborer during a week will have to buy the necessary stamp there is a decided objection on the part of the employers to become the "first employer."

To obviate this a clearing house has been started at the Liverpool docks to apportion the dues among the employers.

The men struck against this at first but the majority of them have since accepted.

The insurance of domestic servants has been heretofore one of the objections to the act as the employers not caring to deduct the servants' share from their wages, the payment of the whole amount becomes a tax on the householder.

Much as they dislike, however, the householders are taking the position that it is easier to make the payments themselves than to suffer the trouble of being penalized for refusal.

Such insurance is really no new thing among British workers, as they have provided for it before through their societies and trades unions.

MEN FOR HARVESTING

Manitoba Government Starting Campaign in East to Secure Help

Winnipeg.—The west needs men and needs them badly. The appearance of a good crop is now in sight, and by all accounts harvesting will be in full blast between the 10th and 15th of August. The different railways are making preparations to secure the men required to assist in harvesting the great crop in sight. Joseph Burke, superintendent of the provincial immigration and employment division, in an interview said: The provincial government of Manitoba is sending to the eastern States and eastern Canada men for the purpose of advertising the requirements of the province along this line. No less than 25,000 men are required for Manitoba alone, and there is no doubt that the other provinces will require no less than 40,000 men to assist them.

The eyes of the people of the west are fixed on the older lands to supply the demands for this great work. The railway companies are making a big effort to secure a large number of men from Europe, and it is to be hoped that they are successful, as the amount of work now in progress in Canada is such that 100,000 men would have no trouble in securing work, 1,000 men could find jobs to-day with the farmers if we could secure them. Wages are now $40 a month for farm laborers.

Barracks at Edmonton

Ottawa.—The government has decided to build large new barracks for the use of the North-West Mounted Police at Edmonton. The urgent need of these barracks has been realized for some years. Tenders have been called for a large building to be designed after the most up-to-date barracks in Great Britain. It is understood that the lowest tender thus far has been received from Messrs. Nesbit and Miller of Edmonton.

Guarding Against Forest Fires

Ottawa.—R. H. Campbell, director of the forestry branch of the department of the interior, has left on his annual trip of western Canada. While in the west he will investigate the progress of work on the establishment of lookout towers, and a telephone system on the forest reserves, which was concluded this year, to enable the foresters to obtain earliest possible information of fires and take the necessary steps to check them.

New Light Ship is Planned

Ottawa.—The department of marine and fisheries are considering the purchasing or building of a new light ship for the Fraser River, B.C.

Tenders will be called for its construction soon. The rapid increase of traffic on the river coupled with a desire to afford the greatest possible safety to ships has made the necessity for the new light ship urgent.

Will Flog White Slavers

London.—The house of commons committee, to which it was referred has approved of the bill looking toward the suppression of the white slave traffic and providing for flogging of convicted slavers. It will go directly back to the house, where it is sure of prompt passage.

CIVIL SERVICE JOBS

Students Seek Vacation Employment as in Previous Years

Ottawa.—Dr. Chabot, M.P. for Ottawa, had an interview with Acting Premier Perley in respect to a difficulty which has caused considerable ill-feeling in Ottawa this summer. It concerns temporary employment in the civil service. For some years it has been the custom to employ temporarily in this department a number of students. It furnishes them with employment in vacation, and assists them in defraying expenses at college. This year, however, the civil service commission, or at least, Prof. Shortt, has sat down upon it. He takes the stand that only those who passed a test should be appointed. An exception, it is said, would be made in the case of those temporarily employed before. Dr. Chabot claims that this is working an unnecessary hardship on a deserving class.

Monument to Ed. Hanlan

Toronto.—The plans for the monument to the late Edward Hanlan, for many years champion oarsman of the world, have been prepared by Architect Denison. The monument will be placed immediately south of the entrance to the docks at Hanlan's Point, within fifty yards of the house in which Hanlan was born, and will cost about $20,000. The Toronto Ferry Company has donated $10,000, the city $2,500, and the provincial government $300. The remainder will be raised by subscription. The monument will be 100 feet high, of white marble, with granite base and includes a bronze tablet recording Mr. Hanlan's prowess, and a medallion of the head and shoulders of the late champion.

Relieving Grain Congestion

Ottawa.—The government has taken two important steps designed to relieve the grain situation in the west. After consultation with Prof. Magill it decided to authorize the grain commission to purchase from the Canadian Northern a piece of land at Port Arthur adjoining the C.N.R. elevator and having a water frontage of six hundred feet on this site; on this site an elevator will be erected. At the same time the cabinet took steps to enlarge the capacity of the elevator at Port Colborne from 800,000 to two million bushels. J. A. Jamieson, who constructed the elevator will be asked to superintend the enlargement.

Bernier to Sail for North

Ottawa.—Captain J. E. Bernier, the former commander of the steamer Arctic, on her three cruises to the far north, when he asserted Canada's sovereignty and compelled the American whalers to pay tribute has at last completed his plans for his expedition to the north in search of gold, iron, diamonds and other such valuable commodities.

He will sail from Quebec this week in a steamer which he has chartered and expects to be absent until next summer. He has secured ample financial backing.

Montreal Dock Strike Averted

Montreal.—The big dock strike which was threatened has been avoided by the Dominion Transport Co. raising the wages of most of the discontented handlers.

GRAIN GROWERS' GRAIN COMPANY

Annual Meeting Held at Winnipeg Shows Largely Increased Business

Winnipeg.—Some idea of the strength of the Grain Growers' Grain Company, the organization of Western Canadian farmers, whose shareholders held their annual meeting here under the presidency of T. A. Crerar, can be gathered from the statement of the year's trading, which shows a net profit of $121,614 for the past year, against $69,000 the previous year, and but $790 five years ago. Paid-up capital is $586,000, and after paying a ten per cent. dividend, the directors recommended that $60,000 be added to the reserve fund, which now totals $200,000. The president pointed out that this satisfactory progress had been made despite the difficulty in handling last year's crop owing to the low grades, tough wheat and traffic congestion.

The president says that the company had practically closed with the Canadian Pacific a deal whereby they lease the big terminal elevator B at Fort William, Ont., and with the Manitoba government for leasing its extensive system of internal elevators, both of which projects the meeting would be asked to ratify. The company had also acquired timber limits in British Columbia, estimated to contain three million feet, in anticipation of the time when they would go into that business on behalf of the shareholders.

Speaking of future development, Mr. Crerar favored the local unit method as practiced by the farmers' elevators of Minnesota and the Dakotas, whereby other classes of merchandise were successfully handled by country elevators. It was necessary to secure the best results to maintain the staffs all the year round, and lumber, binder twine and implements could be profitably handled during the summer months. He advocated the securing of a good coal area, as coal and lumber were rapidly going under control of combines. He favored selling to everyone, but giving a discount to their shareholders. Units would be built up by issue of stock to local subscribers, and there was no reason why, in time, the successful merchandising of the British Co-operative Societies should not be duplicated.

The company might further secure connection with a mortgage corporation, and secure cheap money for farmers. The money power in Canada, he said, was becoming a menace and its evil possibilities might largely be overcome by co-operative credit societies.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS IN JUNE

Departmental Statistics Show 62 Were Killed and 249 Injured

Ottawa.—According to the industrial accident record of the department of labor sixty-two persons were killed and 249 injured during the month of June in the course of their employment. A comparison with the records of the previous month and of June, 1911, shows that there were 28 fewer fatalities than in May and 30 less than in June, 1911. Of the non-fatal accidents there were 8 more recorded than in May and 137 more than in June, 1911. There were but two accidents recorded involving the death of more than one workman, one of which occurred on June 1, by which eight construction laborers were killed during the blasting operations on the railway construction work near Stone Corners, Ontario, and the other a head-on collision of railway trains near Nipigon, Ont., in which four railway employees were killed.

Cement Duty

Ottawa.—The heavy importations of cement under the duty remission recently granted raises the question whether or not the duty will be put back to where it was formerly. It has been shown that even allowing for the remission of the duty by half there is still an equivalent of about 35 per cent. protection considering haulage and freight rates. The matter of dealing with the duty permanently is one for the cabinet to consider and the present situation will obtain in any event till October. Meantime there is thought to be a possibility that the duty may not be put back.

Sir Percy Grouard's Position

London.—The Times announces that Lieut.-Colonel Sir Percy Grouard, who suddenly resigned as governor of British East Africa, has accepted an important position with Messrs. Armstrong, thus adding another name to the growing list of able public men who have exchanged service with the crown for private business. Sir Percy is the son of the late Desires Grouard, of the Canadian Supreme court.

Russia and Japan

London.—A dispatch to the Times from St. Petersburg commenting on Prince Katsura's visit, says that Russia's flat refusal to listen to suggestions made at the Baltic port interview tending to embroil her with Japan, encourages the belief that Russia is firmly resolved to work harmoniously with Japan.

Wants Penny Post, Canada to France

London.—While in Paris Mr. Pelletier will urge penny postage between Canada and France, though it is conceded it a difficult question in view of the fact that penny postage has not been established between England and France.

GOVERNMENT'S BIG ELEVATOR

Tenders for Million Dollar Structure at Port Arthur Now Being Called for

Ottawa.—The Dominion Government is calling for tenders for construction of the great elevator at Port Arthur. The bids are to be in by August. The site obtained is exceptionally advantageous; it has six hundred feet frontage, runs four thousand feet into the harbor, and is next to the C.N.R. elevator. The price paid for it is $90,000. In capacity, the elevator will equal the one being erected by the G.T.P., the full capacity being 3,250,000 bushels, and its operating rate will be 30,000 bushels in and 50,000 out an hour. All the apparatus will be of the best. Included in the equipment will be a first class drier with a drying capacity of 48,000,000 bushels a day. The cost will be in excess of a million dollars. The elevator will be ready to help in moving next year's crop.

The enlarging of the Port Colborne elevator will cost about $200,000. In this case the elevator proper is constructed, and the only thing necessary is the construction of additional bins for 1,200,000 bushels.

Sessional Indemnities

Ottawa.—The accountant of the house of commons has just concluded payment of sessional indemnities to members of parliament. The great majority of them draw very promptly but some of the wealthier class delay indefinitely. While there are 221 members, indemnity was paid only to 219 individuals. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Rodolphe Forget each representing two seats. While the session lasted 139 days, there were but 75 sitting days. Absence without deductions is allowed for fifteen days. Fifty members were fined $10 a day for being absent for various periods in excess of the statutory allowance.

American Launch Captured

Victoria.—News of a seizure only effected after a fusillade of rifle shots had been fired and when the vessel had been finally run down and captured while she was attempting to escape, developed when the fishery protection cruiser Newington arrived in port with the American gasoline launch Bonita, of Seattle, in tow. The vessel was captured off the west coast of Vancouver Island while poaching and now lies in port awaiting confiscation as a prize.

Indians Show no Signs of Disappearing

Ottawa.—According to statistics just compiled, the Indian in Canada shows no sign of disappearing. During the past year the population increased by a few hundreds and the total number in the Dominion is now 104,000. On the other hand the figures show that the Eskimos are slowly but surely diminishing. There are now only 5,000 of this race in the north. Disease ravages and a lack of knowledge of sanitary requirements are given as causes for the decline.

Big Deal in Manitoba Land

Winnipeg.—The largest deal in Manitoba farm lands which has been recorded for many months, was put through. It comprised 3,000 acres northwest of Shoal Lake and Russell in what is known as the Rossburn district. The buyers were New York, Toronto, and Hamilton capitalists, and the purchase money showed a total of $450,000. The object of the buyers is to sell the land for colonization purposes, and it will result in a considerable addition to the population of the province.

Objected to Chewing

Montreal.—There was only one thing about the Canadian west some of the British manufacturers do not like and that was the prevalence of chewing tobacco among the men there.

J. G. Locks, one of the party, was charmed with most things he saw in the west, but avowed that he was glad to get back east to escape seeing almost every man chewing a big quid of tobacco and spitting almost everywhere and anywhere.

Adopt Agreement for Reciprocity

Kingston, St. Vincent.—The legislative council of St. Vincent has passed resolutions ratifying the agreement of the British West Indian islands for reciprocity in trade and declaring that in any arrangement for a new steamship service, an essential feature of the agreement, shall be the provision of a direct line between Canada, this colony and other small colonies.

Spencer Will Replace Bryce

London.—(Special).—Though the post is not yet vacant, J. W. Fred Spencer, editor of the Westminster Gazette, is being named in usually well informed circles as the ministry's probable choice as the successor to Ambassador Bryce at Washington. Mr. Spencer had a brilliant Oxford career and left the Pall Mall Gazette when Astor bought that journal to become editor of the Westminster Gazette.

Pigs Galore

A well known judge, when he first went to the Bar, was a very blundering speaker. On one occasion when he was engaged in a case involving a right to a lot of pigs, he said:

Gentlemen of the jury, there were just 24 pigs in that drove; just 24, gentlemen, exactly twice as many as there are in that jury box.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON IV.—THIRD QUARTER, JULY 28, 1912

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xix, 36-43—Memory Verses, 37-39—Golden Text, Matt. xiii, 30—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This is the second parable of the series of seven recorded by Matthew as one discourse spoken partly in public to the multitudes and partly in private to the disciples on the same day, but all referring to this present age of Israel's rejection of her Messiah and the consequent postponement of the kingdom. It is truly great and gracious condescension on the part of God to make known to us His purpose, "His eternal purpose which He has purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Eph. iii, 11), for "known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world," and all that comes to pass is simply what His hand and counsel determined before to be done (Acts xv, 18; iv, 28). See also Acts ii, 23; Isa. xlii, 9, 10; xiv, 24; Eph. i, 11. Because people who have the word of God, and therein His mind and purpose, do not agree with Him they become conceited, wise in their own estimation, and talk and act unwisely and attempt to carry out plans never devised in heaven. Those who are appointed to teach the word of God are greatly to blame if instead of speaking His word faithfully they act like the false prophets in the days of Jeremiah and make people vain, speaking a vision of their own heart and not out of the mouth of the Lord.

According to the words of our Lord in these parables during this present age up to the time of the harvest, only part of the seed sown will bear fruit. It will be as when Paul dwelt at Rome—some believed and some believed not (Acts xxviii, 24). Side by side with the children of the kingdom will flourish the children of the wicked one. These unbelievers will be found within the professing church as the birds in the branches, and the food of the church, that which preachers give to the people, will be anything but sound doctrine, for that the people will not endure. It will be and even now is as in the days of Isaiah when they said, "Prophecy not unto us right things; speak unto us smooth things; prophesy deceits; cause the holy one of Israel to cease from before us" (Isa. xxix, 10, 11). Our Lord elsewhere foretold these things in Matt. x, 16-18; xxiv, 24. In these four parables, and notably in this one, we see the great adversary, the devil. He hates the word of God, takes it or keeps it from people, gets his followers into the professing church and into her pulpits, and yet the Lord is working out His eternal purpose, and He shall not fall nor be discouraged (Isa. xli, 4).

The kingdom cannot come while the devil continues to be the prince of the power of the air, the prince or god of this world (Eph. ii, 2; John xv, 30; II Cor. iv, 4), but when the stronger than he shall cast him out of the air, and off the earth into the bottomless pit (Rev. xii, 9, xx, 1-3) then a king shall reign in righteousness, and the effect of his rule of righteousness shall be peace, and the nations shall learn war no more. All talk about, winning the world for Christ in this age, or extending His kingdom, or uplifting the race, is without Scriptural authority, and all pride of church or denomination or mere human effort of any kind is not of God, but from him who would have men think they are gods. Note carefully our Lord's explanation of the parable of the tares. In the first parable the seed is the word of God, but in this the good seed are the children of the kingdom, those who have received the word of God (John i, 12). The tares are those who believe the devil and are therefore his children. There are just two great leaders, the Son of Man and the devil, and the conflict is between them for man and his inheritance the earth. We must not think of tares as the openly ungodly, but as something so like the wheat that some cannot tell the difference. The tares represent religious philanthropic people of culture and refinement, people who are admired and esteemed and by many considered the very salt of the earth. There is one very decided mark which distinguishes the wheat from the tares—true children of God confess themselves sinners and accept Jesus as God and put all their trust in his precious blood, the great sacrifice for sin. All others must be tares, for "he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (I John v, 12). The devil will tolerate as much religion as any one may desire, and a beautiful character and abundance of philanthropy provided the sacrifice of Jesus Christ as the sinner's only plea is not mentioned. The Lord knoweth them that are his. Let us be sure that we are redeemed by precious blood and then ever and always without discouragement sow the good seed of the word, ready as seed ourselves to fall into the ground and die that we may win others. I was greatly helped at one time by a remark of the late Dr. Arthur T. Pierson to this effect: Your parish is not your field; the field is the world, and your parish is a force that God has given you to train that he may use you and them to work the field. Those who do not see the results they are looking for will be helped if they remember that when the devil sowed his tares he went his way. He knew that they would grow.

Summit News

Those gentlemen from Bowden who on Tuesday, July 23rd surreptitiously paid a business call to a certain ranch in the Summit district, are warned—for their own safety—to keep clear of said ranch in future, as the owner has now moved all his shotguns—five in number—into the hallway so as to have them handy, and whenever he observes any stragglers in the vicinity of his cattle pasture, he may be seen holding a powerful field glass to his eyes with his left hand while he affectionately carresses the fire arm which happens to be handiest, with the right. A small but powerful canon, has also been erected in one end of the garden and as it commands the front field the danger to preposy is considerably lessened.

A MARVEL OF HEALING

SALT RHEUM OF TEN YEARS' STANDING HEALED AS IF BY MAGIC

Hands Cracked, so Could not Work — Cures Effected by

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

It does not take long for Dr. Chase's Ointment to prove its magic healing power. A single night is often sufficient to produce the most startling results.

Internal treatment for skin diseases is nearly always disappointing. By applying Dr. Chase's Ointment to the diseased parts relief is obtained almost immediately, and gradually the sores heal up and disappear. Here are two letters which will interest you:

Mrs. Chas. Gilbert Haystack, Placentia Bay, Nfld., writes:—"I was a sufferer from Salt Rheum for ten years, and had about despaired of ever being cured, so many treatments had failed. Reading of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment, I commenced using it, and was entirely cured by eight boxes. I want to express my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to recommend it to all sufferers."

Mr. Stanley Merrill, Delaware, Ont. writes:—"For years I was troubled with my hands cracking, often becoming so sore that I could hardly do any work. I got some of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and happily find that one or two applications of same to the affected parts make them well. I have had no trouble since using the ointment for sore hands."

The Cool Stranger

Business was brisk in the village store when the stranger entered. Any of you drive in a trap? he asked casually.

Yes, I did, said Farmer Turnpike disinterestedly. Why? Gray horse, and an old lady inside. Yes, that's right. But—

Can she manage him all right? said the stranger.

I should think so, replied Turnpike. Why, my wife's drove that horse ever since he was a 3-year-old.

That's all right, then, said the stranger. I merely asked because the gray has just gone down the street like a mad bull, and the old lady's hanging onto the back of the trap, screaming murder! Still, if she can manage him, there's nothing to get excited about. How's the price of 'aters down your way?—London Answers.

The Oil of Power.—It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil that it will cure every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. It has achieved that greatness for itself and any attempts to surpass it have failed. Its excellence is known to all who have tested its virtues and learnt by experience.

Had His Doubts

Harry Lauder once scored with a neat impromptu at a Scottish theatre. He had just finished his third song, and the audience were vehemently demanding more. Some of his admirers were calling out the names of the songs they wanted to hear. One enthusiastic young man in a prominent seat, was particularly insistent. I love a lassie, I love a lassie, he kept shouting. The genial comedian looked at him over, shook his head, and remarked gravely: I hae ma doots, my laddie. If you did you'd ha' fetched her with you.

Among the coffee-drinkers a high place must be given to Bismark. He liked coffee undiluted. While with the Prussian Army in France he one day entered a country inn and asked the host if he had any chicory in the house. He had. Bismark said, Well, bring it to me; all you have. The man obeyed and handed Bismark a canister full of chicory. Are you sure this is all you have? demanded the Chancellor. Yes, my lord, every grain. Then, said Bismark, keeping the canister by him, go now and make me a pot of coffee.

A Double-Barreled Escape

Miners are among the most heroic people in the world. Danger is always beside them, and they are schooled to believe that at any time they will come face to face with death. The result of this is that they are humorous in their boldness.

In one of the mines of Pennsylvania there was a cave-in which imprisoned a miner named Jack Thornton. The accident happened on Friday afternoon, and the fellow laborers of the entombed man set to work at once to dig him out. It was not until Sunday morning, however, that they reached his prison chamber, and by this time they were wondering whether he had been suffocated or starved to death. One of them stuck his head through the aperture made by the picks of the rescuers and called out:

Jack, are you all right? All right, came the reply, and then after a pause, What day is this? Sunday, answered the friend. Gee! exclaimed Jack. I'm glad of that. That was one Saturday night when those saloon keepers didn't get my wages!

Examination Time

The eagle-eyed examiner was sure Jones was cheating. Twenty times during the last hour that individual had pulled out his watch and examined it closely. Jones, suddenly roared the master, bring your watch to me! Jones reluctantly handed over the timepiece, but all the disgusted examiner found was a small slip pasted to the dial on which was written "Fooled!" Jones was allowed to resume his work, but he still referred to his watch so frequently that the examiner again grew suspicious. "Suddenly an idea struck him," Jones, he shouted, I'll see your watch again, please! With eager hands the examiner seized the watch, but this time he devoted his attention to the back of the case. Sure enough there was a scrap of paper inside, for it bore the inscription—"Fooled again!" Then Jones was allowed to work in peace.

The Solution of a Mystery

Job Hedges, the New York lawyer, wit, and after-dinner speaker, was called upon on one occasion to give advice to a young man who was thinking of taking up the study of law.

My young friend, said Hedges, I was once standing outside of a big music store in the city of New York, and was lost in admiration of the muscles and sinews of the men who lifted the piano on and off the drais. I was joined by a middle-aged man who looked like an Irishman.

I love to watch those fellows, I remarked casually. Their strength is fascinating.

Yes, agreed the Irishman, and they are interesting for another reason. Whenever I see a lot of piano movers and hack drivers, I am reminded that every year the colleges turn out a lot of graduate lawyers who never practice their professions.

The Simplest of Remedies

John Drew was interviewed by a newspaper man in a hotel in Chicago one night, and at last realized that he would have a hard time getting rid of the visitor. The writer seemed determined to sit forever, in spite of the signs of sleepiness exhibited by the actor.

I suppose I seem like a night owl, said the visitor when the clock pointed to nearly three o'clock in the morning. As a matter of fact, I'm just that. I suffer intolerably with insomnia. I wonder what's the best thing to do for it.

Go to sleep, suggested Drew smoothly. If you'll step into the next room while I undress, I'll show you how to do it.

Why He Wanted Milk

A clergyman had been displeased with the quality of the milk served him. At length he determined to remonstrate with his milkman for supplying such unworthy stuff. He began mildly, I've been wanting to see you with regard to the quality of milk with which you are serving me. Yes, sir, uneasily answered the tradesman. I only wanted to say, continued the minister, that I use the milk for drinking purposes exclusively and not for christening.

A poor woman was telling a kind-hearted visitor how the doctor came and said she had a sluggish liver. What beats me, she added, is how them slugs get inside the liver.

Yes, remarked the telephone girl as she gazed out at the waves and wondered what their number was, I am connected with the best families in our city.

What It Was Worth

A Scottish lady, who was spending her holidays in London, entered a bric-a-brac shop in search of something odd to take home to Scotland with her. After she had inspected several articles, but had found none to suit her, she noticed a quaint figure, the head and shoulders of which appeared above the counter. What is that Japanese idol over there worth? she inquired of the salesman. The salesman's reply was given in a subdued tone. Worth about half-a-million, madam. That's the proprietor.

Some friends were talking of success. A certain man who had made a fortune was mentioned.

When that man came to New York a few years ago, one said, everything he possessed was tied up in a handkerchief. Today—

The speaker smiled and stroked his close-clipped mustache.

Today everything he possesses is tied up in his wife's name, he added.

Enterprise

Hearing a noise at midnight in one of his rooms, a gentleman tiptoed to the spot, thinking to take the burglar unawares. Sikes, however, was not to be caught napping, and before the owner of the house fully realized what was happening, he was looking down the muzzle of a revolver. You realize that you are at my mercy? Yes, replied the house owner. And also realize that I could shoot you dead if I wished? Another trembling affirmative. You did not hear me enter the house? No. Well, if you had your windows fitted with one of Ketchums new patent burglar alarms, this wouldn't have happened. I am an agent for the— But the house owner had swooned.

Tact

After the plumber had finished some repairs about his office, the kind-hearted business man said to him:

You will find soap and clean towels in there when you are through.

The plumber spruced up after he had finished his work, but, to the astonishment of the business man, he appeared a few minutes later with his face daubed with dirt and grease.

Why in the world did you blacken your face up again after you had washed yourself? the business man asked.

Grinning guiltily, the plumber replied, If I went back to the office with a clean face, the boss would think I had been loafing on the job.

Labor Lost

Freddy was taking his father's dinner, and on the way he saw a workman emptying a drain. That drain, said Freddy to the workman, is the one father lost a shilling down. Oh, said the workman, and his face brightened. Now then, youngster, hurry on with that dinner before it gets cold. When Freddy returned half-an-hour later the workman was still working on the same drain. His face was flushed and excited, and his hands were black with mud. Are you sure, he asked, that this is the drain your father lost the money in? Quite sure, piped Freddy, because I saw father get it out myself.

Chinamen are Great Savers

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans. Servants collect and sell match boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women, when too old for any work collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his fowl and then beats old damp mats or matting. Cockroaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for 30 or 50 cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.—Detroit Free Press.

One Thing Lacking

The letter I gave you this morning, did you post it? asked the wife, looking at her husband out of the corner of her eye. No, dear, I did not, said the man boldly. Of course you didn't. And I told you it was important that it should go to-day. Yes, dear. And of course you forgot to post it. If that's not just like a man! But dear—Don't but me. I'm angry. But, dear, look here at the letter. You forgot to address it.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

Mrs. COFFEY.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

This is what Mrs. GENEVIE E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135."

"I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good."

"I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Wheat in this district will in a very few days be all headed out. Reports are that the percentage in actual head is very small. There has been no damage by hail or Hessian Fly, and fortunately there has not been too much rain. The cutting of fall wheat will not however start until about September. The condition of the course grains is excellent.

Not so very long ago, we passed a remark through these columns on the deplorable condition of our streets, while this week we notice a few improvements, by effect of the council, have taken place, yet, perhaps some of the most necessary places in need of repair have been sadly neglected. For instance take the street running East and West adjoining Howard and Morfitts store. This has been left for some time now and they have taken up at their own expense, the cost of filling up with earth.

Brotherhood

Bowden like every other Canadian community, is filled with fraternal organizations. Here we have the Freemasons, Orangemen, Modern Woodmen of America and other societies devoted to the propagation of the principles of brotherhood among men.

But when we get down deep into the heart of this word, Brotherhood, how far are we practising its true principles in our every day lives and conflict?

Listen let us stop and answer to ourselves the stinging and red hot questions which humanity flings into our ears, hour by hour and day by day. Do we study to ascertain the meaning of this matchless word Brotherhood? Here is an old story of the Judean hills;

Once there lived two affectionate brothers, tilling a common farm together. One had a wife and children; the other was a lonely man.

One night, in the harvest time, the older brother said to his wife: "My brother is a lonely man; I will go out and move some of the sheaves from my side of the field over to his, so that when he sees them in the morning his heart will be cheered by the abundance of food he did."

That same night the other brother said to his labors: "My brother has a houseful and many mouths to fill, I am alone and do not need all this wealth. I will go down and move some of my sheaves over to his side so that he will rejoice in the morning when he sees how great is his store." And he did.

And both brothers moved their sheaves over to the others side that night and the next, in the sheltering dark. But as they worked on the third night, the moon came out and they met, face to face, with their arms filled with sheaves. On this spot says the old legend was builded the Temple of Jerusalem: for it was esteemed that there earth came nearest to heaven.
